Namibia (sometimes called South-West Africa) is located on the south western tip of the great continent of Africa. It is twice the size of the state of California and possesses rich stores of many important minerals. The Black population of Namibia has endured colonial exploitation, first, at the hands of Germany, and then, for the last 69 years, by racist South Africa.

The South West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO) has been waging a war of national liberation for over 20 years against the repression of the apartheid regime of South Africa. South Africa would like the 70,000 white settlers in Namibia to retain control of Namibia instead of the over one million Africans who historically are the true owners of the land and its wealth.

The Washington, D.C. community and the Southern Africa Support Project (SASP) join in solidarity with the people of Namibia to work towards the elimination of South African oppression in the region and the establishment of a just and moral government of the people.

..... we are no pitiful mourners
We are not weeping at foreign gates
We are no landless beggars seeking alms
Inciting tears of other nations/
We travelled no distance
To steal other peoples land
But we seek the rights to our own/
And as our parents,
For they battered this pain too-
We have remained Fighters.

"About the Southern Africa Support Project"

The Southern Africa Support Project (SASP) is a community based liberation support group in Washington, D.C. SASP conducts, educational, informational and solidarity programs that help to involve the community in the continuing struggle for human rights in Southern Africa. Each year, a week is set aside where special programs are held and a major fund drive is undertaken to aid refugees in the southern Africa region. Those who are interested in joining in these various activities are invited to write to SASP, P.O. Box 50103, Washington, D.C. 20004, or call 332-2009.

Acknowledgements

SASP would like to express its deepest appreciation to the Graduate Student Council of Howard University for its support of the community forum. Thanks are also due Rev.
